

NCC is pleased to announce that MARGARET HOLCOMB has successfully met the requirements to maintain the NCC national credential in Electronic Fetal Monitoring (EFM).

The credential is earned by meeting educational and/or practice requirements and taking a rigorous examination that covers the specified specialty areas.

MARGARET HOLCOMB joins the over 100,000 health care professionals that have earned the prestigious NCC credential since 1975. Maintenance of the credential is required every three years and involves a continuing competency assessment and earning continuing education.

NCC congratulates MARGARET HOLCOMB on achieving this professional milestone.

NCC is a not for profit organization that sponsors a national certification program in the obstetric, gynecologic and neonatal specialties. NCC is accredited by the National Commission for Certifying Agencies. Please visit nccwebsite.org for more information about NCC and NCC credentials.
